police as "Canal-boat Hattie," was held for trial in Justice Stilsing's court this morning on a charge of obtaining money and jewelry valued at $2.060 from Albert C. Pratt, an elderly and highly respectable jeweiler of 96 Montgomery street.

Mr. Pratt had been duped by the woman for some time, and only lost faith in her when detectives revealed her true character in his presence. Mr. Pratt testified that he had lent the money and jewelry to her on in his presence. Mr. Frait testified that he had lent the money and jewelry to her on her representation that she was about to receive a fortune of $50,000, which her husband had left by his will. He also made arrangements to marry her. He first met her as a scrub woman in his shop.

Mr. Pratt had used up all his savings and had begun to borrow money and jewelry from his friends. It was through Charles McLeer, one of the men from whom Pratt had borrowed money, that the woman was Coast Blood-Horse Association. The day was marked by two surprises—one from the judges' stand and the other from the timing stand. The former was a bad decision as to the result of the Gano Stakes for two-year-olds at three-quarters of a mile.

Mr. Haggin ran two horses, So So, by Longfield, out of Sozodont, and Sonoma, by the same sire, out of Carrie C. They finished first and second against six others. Sonoma, who was first, fouled another in the race and was disqualified. Then came the question under the rules whether So So, who also ran under the Haggin colors, was not disqualified under the rules, that when a horse is disqualified for a colors, was not disqualified under the rules, that when a horse is disqualified for a foul every horse in the race belonging wholly or in part to the same owner is also disqualified. Mr. Haggin declared that Col. Thornton owned Sonoma, and the judges, after a long deliberation, gave the stake to So So, which did not meet the approbation of the crowd. and Mediation this morning. To refute the assertion made by Lawyer Untermover that Brewers' Union No. 1 had been enrolled under an Anarchistic flag, the union this morning exhibited the banner in questio. Although red in color, the banner bore very peaceful inscriptions.

Secretary Herbrand, of the men's organization, testified that he had ordered the browers' strike in Milwaukee on Nov. 11. 1887, and that the Milwaukee boycott circulars, had been printed in New York at his direction.

Mr. Herbrand acknowledged that he had received money from Brewer George Bechtel, who is outside the pool. It was only $150 and was in payment for advertisements in the Braver Zei'ung.

He laughingly asserted that he had never heard of Bechtel's paying the local union 3 per cent. of his earnings during the lockout.

INTECIAL TO THE WORLD, WASHINGTON PARK, April 27.-With splendid weather and the Athletics for opponents every available seat on the grounds should have been filled to-day. But Brooklyn's recent trip to Oyster-town hadn't been productive of a record of victory, and the City of Churches only turned out about nineteen hundred people to greet them on their return. Terry, who was in the nox when the Brooklyne went their only game in the series with the Oysten-men, was put in with Peeples to work the woof. The men played in these positions:
